Rebels Enjoy Evening at IMAX

The October social outing took 17 members and guests of the Diving Rebels to Fort Worth's Omnimax Theater to view the Deep Sea filmed by renowned underwater videographer Howard Hall and narrated by Kate Winslet and Johnny Depp. The wraparound images on the dome worked especially well at simulating the underwater environment we are used to seeing and transporting all of us to a wide range of locations -- the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, the Sea of Cortez and the Gulf of Mexico. In the film we were treated to such exotic critters as the well-named fried egg jellyfish, the colorful extraterrestrial-looking mantis shrimp, the oddly shaped Mola Mola fish, the giant, ever-changing Humboldt squid, the strange looking Irish Lord, and the monster-like wolf eel. The film did have an underlying ecological message all humans should note: Take even one element out of this equation and the rest of the community suffers.

After the movie -the group adjourned to the nearby Pappasitos restaurant for a great dinner and discussion of the film, among other stories. If you missed the outing, you can capture a glimpse of what everyone experienced on the Web site (www.imax.com/deepsea)
